The Episcopal Lineage Of The Hierarchy In The United States

In April, 1941, Seminary Studies of Mount St. Mary of the West, Cincinnati, Ohio, published an article, "The Episcopal Lineage of the Hierarchy in the United States." With this article a chart was prepared on which the names of all members of the hierarchy of the United States were arranged in lineages based on episcopal consecration. A letter was written and sent out with copies of the original article, asking for criticisms and suggestions which could improve the usefulness of the chart. Considerable interest was manifested in the study, especially in the chart, and many favorable comments and helpful suggestions were made. The most frequent request was that an index system be devised in order to facilitate the finding of the names. Another suggestion, not quite so frequent, was that each one of the lineages be traced back, if possible, to some Supreme Pontiff.

Now, seven years later, an attempt has been made to improve the chart and to bring it up to date. Some minor errors in the original work have been corrected and a few omissions have been supplied. An alphabetical index has been attached and should render further study much easier. Unfortunately the materials that would make it possible to trace all lineages back to some Pope are not available.

The article that appeared in 1941 was based chiefly upon the work of Rev. Joseph B. Code, Dictionary of the American Hierarchy, which contains a complete record of the American Bishops from 1790 to 1940. In preparing this present article further data and statistics have been used in order to bring the record up to date. The entire American Hierarchy is presented on one large chart according to the relation of the members to one another by episcopal consecration. From the multiple origins of the American Hierarchy the lines of descent are traced diagrammatically from consecrator to consecrated down to the present time. By this grouping of all the Apostolic successors on one chart, the external history of the Church in the United States is presented in brief outline. Many interesting facts, statistical and historical, are brought into relief by such a compact survey. They could easily escape attention in long and exhaustive studies of individual members of the episcopal family.

Besides the one large chart which is connected with this booklet as a loose insert, three smaller charts are also presented in the booklet. The smaller charts have several advantages over the large one. They are less cumbersome and easier to read. Moreover, in order to conserve space on the large chart first names have been omitted except in those few instances where two or more bishops have the same family name; the smaller charts give the first names of all the bishops. The chronological order has often been sacrificed on the large chart in order to conserve space; the smaller charts indicate individual lineages for the most part in chronological order. The large chart does not provide space for additional names; on the smaller charts it will be easy to add the names of new bishops.

Since the names appear in different order on the two charts, a double index is necessary. The first set of numbers in the index refers to the names on the charts in the booklet. The second set of numbers in the index refers to the names on the large chart. The following is an example:

	Book	Chart
	Plate
O'Dowd, James .....	A253	177

The first reference means that this name can be found in the booklet on Plate A, number 253; the second reference indicates its position on the large comprehensive chart.

It may be well to note here that the general rule for the arrangement of the index numbers is:

- 1) On the large chart the index numbers are above the name and read from left to right horizontally across the page;
- 2) On the smaller charts the index numbers are in front of the name and read vertically from top to bottom.

A mere glance at the origin of the hierarchy in the United States reveals a striking relationship between the incipient church and the infant republic. John Carroll, born in America, was named first bishop of Baltimore in the same year that George Washington was inaugurated as first president of the United States. In the words of Archbishop Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, "the Republic and the Church began gloriously together the history of their greatness." Together they spread and grew, it might readily be added, pushing westward from state to state, to settle new territories and educate the inhabitants.

Since John Carroll became the first bishop in the United States, more than six hundred American bishops have been consecrated. Under the term "American bishops" are included not only those prelates who have occupied or now occupy Sees in the United States, but also all citizens of the United States who have been elevated to the episcopal dignity. Hence those bishops are included who were born in the United States or who served for a time as priests here even though their Sees are not in this country. The six Apostolic Delegates to the United States are also included. Cardinal Falconio was an American citizen. Since the end of the Civil War in 1865 every year has witnessed the consecration of at least one member of the American Hierarchy.

From the charts it is apparent that the line of descent from Bishop Carroll spans the greatest number of years and embraces the largest number of bishops. There are many other lineages. From time to time bishops of foreign Sees consecrated American bishops. In this manner at least sixty distinct branches were begun in the American Hierarchy in the following chronological order.

1. Walmesley .....	1790

60. Sevrin .....	1947

It is interesting to note that among the recent lines is one from Pius XII, the first Pope to consecrate an American bishop. Bishop La Ravoire-Morrow and Bishop William F. O'Shea are the only American bishops who have been consecrated by a reigning Pontiff. The most recent line of descent was begun by Bishop Anscario Sevrin when he consecrated Bishop Ignatius Glennie, S. J., September 21, 1947.

From these sixty sources 616 bishops and archbishops have been given to the American Hierarchy. It is possible that several more lines of descent should be enumerated. Records are not available, however, for the consecration of Bishop Edward Barron, who was appointed Vicar Apostolic in 1842; Bishop Porro y Reinado, who was consecrated on November 15, 1801, at Rome, but never took possession of his See; Bishop John Thomas Hynes, O.P., who was consecrated titular bishop of Leros in 1838; and Bishop Louis Joseph D'Herbomez, who was appointed vicar of the Northwest Territory in 1879.

Since many bishops died without having consecrated other bishops, some of these sixty lines of descent are already extinct. Here is an alphabetical list of living and extinct lines in the American Hierarchy. The latter, of course, are extinct only insofar as American bishops are concerned. There may or may not be living descendants who do not belong to the American Hierarchy.

By going back a few steps beyond the immediate origins of some lines of descent, it would be possible to combine several of them under one common ancestor. In this manner the three distinct lineages of Cardinal Rampolla, Cardinal Merry Del Val, and Cardinal Boggiani are united on the chart under the name of Cardinal Rampolla. Cardinal Boggiani was consecrated by Cardinal Merry Del Val, and Cardinal Merry Del Val was consecrated by Cardinal Rampolla. The immediate line of descent from Cardinal Rampolla through Martinelli is extinct; but not the more remote lines of descent through Cardinals Merry Del Val and Boggiani.

This combination of lineages has been indicated on the chart even though materials are not available to indicate other similar combinations which could undoubtedly be made.

The line begun by Bishop Walmesley, as has been mentioned, is by far the most prolific. To date it includes 258 descendants—forty-one percent of the total number of American bishops. Of the four bishops consecrated by John Carroll, only two consecrated other bishops. Bishop Cheverus has given 105 descendants to the American Hierarchy, and Bishop Flaget 148. In the Walmesley-Carroll line there are many outstanding prelates whose names are intimately connected with the growth and progress of church and nation.

The line of Cardinal Doria Pamphili is next in length, having eighty-six members. Cardinal Monaco La Valetta has fifty-four episcopal descendants; Cardinal Rossi has thirty-nine; Cardinal Merry Del Val has thirty-three; Archbishop (later Cardinal) Bedini has twenty-nine.

It may be of interest to compare the several lineages originating directly from Rome with the one begun by Bishop Walmesley when he consecrated Bishop Carroll in 1790. The first line of descent originating in Rome began in 1808 with the consecration of Bishop Concanen by Cardinal Di Pietro. Since then twenty-one other lineages have had their origins in Rome. These twenty-two Roman lines have given to the Church 294 American bishops and archbishops, whereas the line of descent from Bishop Walmesley includes 258 descendants. Only 64 of the 616 American bishops and archbishops have had their episcopal origin elsewhere. Ten of the Roman lines are now extinct. Moreover, as Archbishop Messmer pointed out in an article in the American Catholic Historical Review in January, 1917, it would be necessary to go back only one step to trace the English line to Rome itself. Bishop Walmesley was consecrated at Rome by Cardinal Lanti in 1756.

The influence of some prelates on the growth of the Church in our country is indicated, to some extent, by the large number of bishops consecrated by them. Our present Apostolic Delegate, Archbishop Cicognani, for example, has consecrated thirty-two bishops; Cardinal Gibbons consecrated twenty-three; Archbishop Purcell and Archbishop P. R. Kendrick each consecrated sixteen; Archbishop Ireland and Cardinal Dougherty consecrated thirteen; Cardinal McCloskey, Cardinal Mundelein, and Cardinal Hayes, eleven each; and Archbishop Williams consecrated ten bishops.

Ten of the fifteen American Cardinals (excluding the Apostolic Delegates) have consecrated one hundred and five American bishops. The six Apostolic Delegates to the United States have consecrated sixty-two. Nine of the ten Archbishops of Baltimore have consecrated fifty-three other bishops. New York's first two bishops consecrated none; however, the succeeding bishop and six archbishops have consecrated fifty-one. The four Archbishops of Cincinnati have raised thirty-six to the episcopal dignity. The one bishop and four archbishops of St. Louis have consecrated thirty-five. Only one of the first four bishops of Philadelphia consecrated others; he and the four succeeding archbishops have consecrated thirty-two. The first four bishops of Chicago consecrated none however, the fifth bishop and the four succeeding archbishops have consecrated twenty-six.

Bishop Joseph Marling, Auxiliary Bishop of Kansas City, has the longest episcopal ancestry in number of consecrators. His lineage extends back through a series of eleven consecrators. The bishop with the longest lineage in the number of years is Bishop James O'Dowd, the most recently consecrated within the Walmesley-Carroll line. He was consecrated on June 29, 1948, by Archbishop John Mitty.

These are some observations that may claim attention in a comprehensive survey of the hierarchy in the United States during the last century and a half. Many other interesting facts can be ascertained from the accompanying charts of lineages. These charts have been prepared primarily for their historical interest but they are not restricted to that. Such diagrams give above all a clear demonstration of valid apostolic succession for the hierarchy of this nation. It confirms the Catholic's belief in the unity of the Church and should attract non-believers to an investigation of its claims. It would have a greater apologetic and historical value if some patient historian could successfully trace the sixty branches in the American Hierarchy back through some common ancestor of many centuries ago.
